

Zandra Anderson is a trial lawyer who in 2005 decided to mix passion with profession. She jokes that her life went to the dogs. She has practiced animal law exclusively since then and has represented or counseled with owners and their animals including dogs, cats, horses, ferrets, exotic birds, geese, monkeys, lemurs, goats and a Guinea pig so far.

Zandra represents animals and their owners regarding ownership disputes, dangerous dog declarations, animal cruelty, and cases involving pet professionals and animal businesses. She has had cases involving liability issues concerning animal professionals, rescue organizations, and dogs that injure people or pets. She has represented animal owners, rescue organizations, veterinarians and other pet professionals and animal related businesses.

Zandra lives in a little city inside Houston with her three dogs—Kabe, an All American Dog mixed with who knows what she got from the local police department, Ziggy a purebred, AKC registered American Staffordshire Terrier, and Zane, her puppy, who is also an AKC registered American Staffordshire Terrier, both obtained from excellent AKC Breeders of Merit. Zandra trains and exhibits dogs in conformation, tracking, nose work, dock diving, barn hunt, obedience, Rally and lure coursing.
