

Jordan Pollock is the Specialized Group Chief at the Dallas County Public Defender's Office, supervising the Appellate, Actual Innocence, Capital Punishment and Immigration units. Before taking on this role, Ms. Pollock was an Immigration Specialist and Supervisor of the Immigration Unit of the Dallas Public Defender's office, where she has worked since 2014. Among other duties, Ms. Pollock continues to advise both public defenders and appointed attorneys of the immigration consequences of the criminal charges against non-citizen clients. Ms. Pollock also serves as an adjunct professor at Texas A&M Law School, where she teaches a course in "crimmigration," and is vice chair of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyer's immigration committee. Previously, Ms. Pollock was an Equal Justice Works Fellow at Public Counsel in Los Angeles, where she instituted a Legal Orientation Program at two Orange County detention centers and represented detained immigrants in removal proceedings. She received her J.D. with honors from the University of Texas School of Law and her B.A. with honors from Duke University. Before law school, Ms. Pollock was an accredited representative at the New York Legal Assistance Group, where she represented clients in affirmative immigration matters.