

Hunter Harris is a lifelong West Texan who grew up in Lubbock, Texas, and has dedicated his legal career to serving the people and businesses of his community. He earned his Bachelor of Science degree from Texas Tech University in 2008 before pursuing his legal education at South Texas College of Law–Houston, where he received his Juris Doctor in 2013. Hunter was admitted to the State Bar of Texas that same year.

Hunter began his career as an associate attorney at a construction litigation firm in Houston, Texas, where he gained valuable experience representing general contractors and subcontractors from 2014 to 2015. In 2015, he chose to return to his West Texas roots to focus on a client-centered practice closer to home.

Today, Hunter's practice is concentrated in real estate (farm/ranch), estate planning, probate, and business law, where he works with individuals, families, and business owners to help them plan for the future, resolve difficult transitions, and protect their assets. He is a trained civil mediator, bringing a calm, practical, and solutions-oriented approach to resolving disputes outside the courtroom. In addition, Hunter is certified by the State Bar of Texas as a Guardian ad Litem, reflecting his commitment to protecting the interests of vulnerable individuals.

Hunter joined Huffaker & Harris upon his return to Lubbock and became a partner in 2019. In his role as partner, he strives to provide responsive, accessible representation and to build long-term relationships with his clients based on trust and clear communication.

Outside the office, Hunter and his wife, Ashley, reside in the area, where they are busy raising their two energetic sons.
